

CUSTOMER SHOPPING BEHAVIOR

Customer shopping behavior points to a loyalty opportunity

3,900 purchases turn broad behavior into focused growth actions.

3,900 purchases reveal a broad, usable customer picture

DATASET

3,900

Transactions across 18 columns and 25 purchased items.

SIGNALS

Behavior in context

Demographics, product choices, spend, discounts, shipping, ratings, subscriptions, and purchase frequency.

PREPARATION

Ready for targeting

Missing ratings imputed by category median; fields standardized; age groups and purchase-frequency features added.

Clothing drives the largest share of revenue

Revenue by category

Category

Clothing leads at about $100K, followed by Accessories at about $75K.

Footwear contributes about $40K; Outerwear about $20K. Use category performance to anchor assortment and campaign priorities.

Most customers are loyal, but subscriptions lag behind

CUSTOMER SEGMENTS

3,116

Loyal

701 Returning · 83 New

SUBSCRIPTION STATUS

1,053

Subscribers

2,847 non-subscribers

Loyalty is strong enough to support a focused subscription conversion push.

Discounts attract high-value purchases, not just bargain hunters

HIGH-SPENDING DISCOUNT USERS

839

Customers spent above the average purchase amount while using discounts.

AVERAGE PURCHASE

$59.76 across the dataset

WATCHOUT

Hats, sneakers, coats, sweaters, and pants show the highest discount rates, roughly 47%–50%.

Small experience differences can still guide targeting

Revenue by age group

CONVENIENCE SIGNAL

Express averages $60.48

Standard averages $58.46.

Young Adults lead revenue at about $62K, followed by Middle-aged customers at about $59K.

Prioritize convenience and younger high-revenue audiences in targeted campaigns.

Product winners create clear campaign anchors

TOP-RATED PRODUCTS

3.86 · Gloves

3.84 · Sandals

3.82 · Boots

3.80 · Hat

3.78 · Skirt

Top purchased by category: Jewelry, Blouse, Sandals, and Jacket.

Pair proven products with the audiences and offers most likely to convert.

The dashboard turns analysis into a decision surface

CUSTOMERS

3.9
K

AVG PURCHASE

$59.76

AVG REVIEW

3.7
5

DECISION VIEWS

Subscription status · gender · category · shipping type · category revenue · sales · age-group performance

Move from broad patterns to campaign and assortment decisions.

Four actions connect the findings to growth

01

Boost subscriptions

Test exclusive benefits with loyal non-subscribers.

02

Reward repeat buyers

Use loyalty mechanics to move returning customers upward.

03

Protect margin

Review discount-heavy products and measure incremental lift.

04

Focus campaigns

Feature top-rated products and target high-revenue age groups with convenience-led offers.

These recommendations follow the project report's stated business priorities.